 Last day of term

We have now arrived at the end of the fourth week of home learning. The quality of learning that we have been able to celebrate over the past four weeks has been truly inspiring. This week we have been able to issue even more devices to further support children to carry out learning on line. We have also held parent briefings with many of you so that you are clearer on the skills that children are aiming to develop each week. Learning packs have also been collected by pupils and parents from the school office last week and some remain available for those that wish to collect packs next week. We are excited about the learning outcomes that we are going to receive next week. A number of you have now received your celebration certificates and medals through the post. Thank you for sharing your wonderful photos!

We would like to take time to thank you for your support with the safe delivery of live sessions. Safety of pupils and staff are our prime consideration during these sessions. We are grateful for the role that you continue to play in ensuring that this happens. Please continue to stay up to date with the latest government and health advice on keeping yourself and your loved ones safe at this time. Have a marvellous weekend. We look forward to seeing and hearing from you all on Monday morning.

Value of the Month:

January – Happiness

February - Passion

Keeping fit with Ms Teri

Our Sports Coach, Teri has been online this week to deliver the children's sports lessons. These sessions encourage children to be physically active with different sport themes. All activities have been developed so everyone can have a go using equipment found in the home and in whatever space you have available. The children have been thoroughly engaged, and having fun, from pretending to be dinosaurs, to working out on their way to a fictitious island or local shop!

Young Artists' Summer Show

YEAR 3

All of a sudden, I glanced over my shoulder and I caught sight of the bustling crowds of children and screaming teachers Inside Paddington station. The air was dense with smoke and the ear-splitting noise of the steam engine. It was making my ears hurt.
 In the morning, I could feel the warm sun as it burst through the windows as I walked through the immense station.

As I approached the gates of the station, I could feel my hands begin to sweat. Also, sweat was dripping down my face and I could feel the some drip into my mouth and it tasted horribly salty. I could feel a knot in my belly. My mum took and squeezed my hand, and whispered in my ear that everything was ok. I walked into the station and could see crowds of nervous children clinging on to their mums. I could hear some of the children sobbing as they hugged their mums. The air was filled with the sweet smell of the mums perfume mixed with the thick smell of smoke from the trains. A train pulled into the station and train tracks creaked beneath it, the driver pulled the horn and it made a deafening sound. Our train had arrived!

TAP TAP TAP

Many years ago, in a land full of exotic spices and delicious fragrances there lived a boy named Elijah. He came from a poor family but he always had a cheerful smile on his hazel brown face. He would walk to the beach every morning to catch the salty breeze of the sapphire blue sea. After he went to the beach Elijah would head down to the market to buy and smell some of the produce. There were pineapples, mangoes and coconuts of all kinds. He always came back home with a bag of food slung on his shoulder. After his breakfast he would take his grandmother for a walk and she would tell him all about her rosewood wand. "Three taps my mother used to say and something shall change into another," she'd always whisper.

One day while Elijah was walking through the market, he saw the royal knights handing out fancy invitations. He asked the produce man what was going on. "The princess is having a ball" he answered gruffly. So after breakfast - when Elijah was out with his grandmother - he told her "There is a ball for the princess and I really want to go but I have no clothes to wear! and I have no horse to ride!" And after he had finished retelling the whole story of how he had found this out, he broke down into sobs. The grandmother said reassuringly "Don't worry my child I will find a way to let you go". On the night of the ball, grandmother came, and wand in her hand she said to Elijah "Fetch me a lizard!" Tap tap tap! There was bang and another to reveal that the lizard that Elijah had got, turned into a beautiful spotted brown horse. Tap tap tap went the wand. Elijah's rags turned to a handsome suit with a brilliant top hat. "Now I must warn you the magic will only last till midnight so when 12 'O'clock strikes you must come back home immediately."

Elijah went to the ball as happy as ever. When he entered the ball all eyes were on him. He walked straight to the princess and said "May I have this dance?" They danced and they danced until Elijah heard the twelve bong of midnight but on his way out he tripped and his waistcoat came out. The princess picked it up and declared "Anyone who fits this waistcoat is whom I love". The next morning the princess came round to all the boys in the neighbourhood. Everyone tried to squeeze themselves into the coat, but none of them could. When they finally got to Elijah the marriage was declared and they lived , Happily Ever After!

Jingle all the Way – Thank you Hannah!

During the Christmas holidays, Hannah featured in an article on The Healthy Living Platform Website!
Here is what they had to say about her amazing act of kindness.

'A big thanks to our local volunteers, Hannah and Michael, who recorded this jolly duet of Jingle Bells together on Zoom. Hannah wanted to raise money for a local charity by sending a festive, musical message to her friends and neighbours to encourage them to donate. We are thrilled that she chose to support Healthy Living Platform. Her music teacher, Michael- has been volunteering with us since March, helping to deliver hot food to our families and members so he was able to tell Hannah all about the work that we do.'
